Georgia Journal.

MILLEDGEVILLE, TUESDAY, MAY 4, 1819.

al Jackson will not be selected as the pivot on which to try the question, whether a manuscript publication be a violation of the regulation or not. As the weaker party, in the controversy both before the government and the country, general Scott has no disposition to come to trial on the other point touching the pamphlet; although the principles governing the two cases appear to be precisely the same. It is enough that he admits, that "laws are made for the weak, and not for the strong," without wishing the public should have before it, at the same time, and at his expense, two living and concurrent illustrations of the truths contained in that apothegm.

General Scott, therefore, has no mode left him to counteract the machinations he complains of, or to vindicate his character, except by shielding himself under the precedent set by his opponent, in respect to the form of publication; and in this form the public shall have the entire correspondence.

But here, again, general Scott labors under a great disadvantage, in comparison with his opponent. He has not a numerous staff to copy, to certify and circulate the correspondence. He in the discharge of the laborious duty confided to him, happens, at this moment, not to have an aid-de-camp with him. His occupations do not permit him to carry his papers through the principal cities of the union, nor can he have recourse to any person about him for the convenient frank to relieve his pocket from the charge of postage. Laboring under these disadvantages, under fatigue and indisposition, he makes this appeal to the public, and begs that the few friends to whom he may have it in his power to send copies, will give them the widest circulation. Some other persons will be furnished in due time.

Richmond (Va.) March 18th, 1819.

Origin of the correspondence.

General Scott first saw, at his quarters, in New York, about the last of May 1817, the celebrated order. He read it in haste, and does not recollect to have made any particular remark on it at that time.

About the 9th of June following, gen. Scott went to dine at a private house, where he met a highly respectable family and company, and among the guests, the governor elect, of the state. By this time, the order had been printed in all the city papers, and was, as will be remembered, the leading topic every where. It soon became the subject of conversation (before dinner) between the governor and gen. Scott, who were seated near each other. The governor thought the order mutinous, and gen. Scott felt himself called upon, by the turn of conversation, if not expressly invited (which is his belief,) to state, profession-support of the president, as he to them, government can now do without the aid of Tennessee, &c. &c. A word to the wise is enough. The enclosed is taken from the Columbian, a paper of much circulation in New York, certified and (signed) J. M. Glassell, aid-de-camp."

NOTES—[ON THE ABOVE.]

War office gentry, &c.—If the writer means to class Gen'l Scott among them, he was totally mistaken. The acting secretary of war, between the summer of 1816, and December, 1817, was the chief clerk of the department—a very worthy and highly respectable private gentleman, but previously not known as a public character, and therefore, in the opinion of general Scott, (as was frequently expressed by him at the time) an unfit person to preside over the army, or to represent it before the congress or the country. It is due to this gentleman to add, that whilst in the department, he conducted himself with great modesty and propriety. Gen. Scott had nothing to expect or to ask from the department, except what the law and his rank entitled him to.

In this district he is the organ, &c.—This is utterly false. General Scott has never, since the war, taken part either in general or local politics. He held no correspondence with the executive departments of the government, except on professional matters, and none with the president; and can almost say with certainty that, he never once had a conversation with a resident of New-York, on the politics of the state, except with one or two friends of the army, the particular admirers of Mr. Clinton.

They have placed spies upon Brown here, &c. &c.—Generals Brown & Scott were, and are, on terms of friendship and intimacy. He has read this correspondence, (in January, 1818,) and frankly acknowledged that general Jackson had sent him a copy of the anonymous letter, to put him on his guard against general Scott. The latter jestingly remarked to general Brown, that if a spy had been placed on him, the president was the person; for at the time the anonymous letter was written, the two were making a tour around the north west frontier together, and on the terms of much mutual respect and good will.—General Scott has reason to believe moreover, that general Brown is well pleased with Mr. Monroe, as president, and the latter with general Brown, as the commander of the army. This is to the honor of both, for general Brown is known to be a decided Clintonian.

The eastern federalists, &c.—Here we discover the hand of a master. Never was a gudgeon seized with more avidity! "A word to the wise is enough." The bait was swallowed, and general Jackson has put his character for wisdom beyond all controversy. "De Witt Clinton, our next

LETTER II.—GENERAL SCOTT TO GENERAL JACKSON. Head quarters, 1st and 3d military departments, New York, October 4th, 1817.

Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th ult. together with the two papers therein enclosed.

I am the author of the miserable and unmeaning article copied from "The Columbian," and (not being a reader of that gazette) should probably never have heard of it, but for the copy you have sent me. And whilst on the subject of writing and publishing, it may save time to say, at once, that with the exception of the substance of two articles which appeared in "The Enquirer" last fall, & a journal kept whilst a prisoner in the hands of the enemy, I have not written, nor caused any other to write a single line for any gazette whatever, since the commencement of the late war.

Conversing with some two or three private gentlemen, about as many times, on the subject of the division order, dated at Nashville, April 22d, 1817; it is true that I gave it as my opinion, that that paper, was, as it respected the future, mutinous in its character and tendency, and as it respected the past, a reprimand of the commander and chief, the president of the United States; for although the letter be not expressly named, it is a principle well understood that the war department, without at least his supposed sanction, cannot give a valid command to an ensign.

I have thus, sir, frankly answered the queries addressed to me and which were suggested to you by the letter of your anonymous correspondent; but on a question so important as that which you have raised in the department, or in other words with the president of the United States, and in which, I find myself incidentally involved, I must take leave to illustrate my meaning a little;—in doing which, I shall employ almost the precise language which was used on the occasions alluded to.

Take any three officers—Let A. be the common superior, B. the intermediate commander, and C. the common junior. A. wishes to make an order, which shall affect C. The good of the service, etiquette and country require, no doubt, that the order should pass through B; or if expedition and the dispersed situation of the parties make it necessary to send the order direct to C. (of which necessity A. is the judge) the good of the service, etiquette and country require, with as little doubt, that A. notify B. thereof, as soon as practicable. Such notice, of itself, has always been held sufficient under the circumstance last stated. But we will suppose that A. sends the order direct to C. and neglects to notify B. thereof; and such appears to be the precise case alluded to in the order before cited. Has B. no redress against this irregularity? He may unobscurely re-

I must pray you to believe, I have expressed my opinion on the question, without the least help yourself personally, and with view of making my court in quarter, as is insinuated by your anonymous correspondent. I have no fear or hope from either part not likely that the executive wended an irregularity in the transmission of its orders; and, as to you though I cheerfully admit that my superior, I deny that you commanding officer, within the of the 6th-article of the rules of war. Even if I belonged to vision, I should not hesitate to you all that I have said, at any your subject, if a proper occasion; and what is more, I should your approbation, as in my hum ment, refutation is impossible.

As you do not adopt the in contained in the anonymous copy of which you enclosed me, degrades myself by any further n

LETTER 3.—GENERAL JACKSON TO GEN. Head quarters, division of the South, December 3, 1817.

Sir—I have been absent from a considerable time, rendering friendly office I could to a friend, whose eyes I closed on ultimo. Owing to this, your letter of October was not received until instant.

Upon the receipt of the communication made New-York, I hastened to lay you; that course was suggested by the respect I felt for you and a soldier, and that you it in your power to answer he had been guilty of so base and able conduct. New York, April 15.—The ship Rougham, of Nantucket, which arrived at the Vineyard 3d inst. left Valparaiso on the 1st December. Captain Russell reports that he left there 3 frigates, six gun-brigs and five transports, just taken from the Royalists, with 1200 troops, and an immense property in goods. He also states that Lord Cochrane arrived at Valparaiso, with his family, on the 24th November, in a ship of about 600 tons. Salutes were fired from every armed vessel in the port, and from the fort; a public dinner was given and great joy manifested.

Married on the 12th inst. by the Rev. F. Flournoy, Dr. John G. Gilbert of Hancock, to Miss Martha P. Bartle, the only daughter of Colonel L. Bartle of Madison.

"O happy state, when souls each other draw;
Where love is liberty, and nature law."

On Friday evening the 30th ult. by James Rousseau, esq. Mr. Loren H. Lewis of Columbia, S. Carolina, to Miss Frances Ann Blythe, of this place.

Died in Sparta, on the 29th ult. Dr. Edward Hood, in the 71st year of his age. Dr. H. was a surgeon for six years in the American army during the revolution.

Died, of a bullet wound, on the 10th ult. on the Florida side of St. Mary's river, opposite Trader's Hill, in this state, Lieutenant WILLIAM H. BRUNN, of the 4th regiment of the United States' infantry. He received his wound in a duel fought with muskets at eight paces. The parties fired at the same instant—Belton was struck under the left breast, and expired in a few minutes, the ball passing through his abdomen was not injured. Lieutenant Brunner possessed all the requisites of a soldier, the manners of a gentleman, and virtues and talents that would grace any station in public or private life. He was a favorite with his superiors and inferiors in the army, by whom his memory will long and fondly be cherished.—Davies Gazette.

Proposals for publishing at Milledgeville.

GEORGIA REPUBLICAN.

THE duty of Editors of News-Papers, fortunately, is well understood by the American people. The publication, therefore, of proposals for printing, does not, as we conceive, require any avowal of political tenets, or protestation of patriotism. 'Tis useless. Let their work, not a prospectus, decide if Editors be, or be not worthy the patronage of their fellow-citizens.

The first number of the Georgia Republican, will be issued by us, at Milledgeville, on the second Tuesday in September, the present year. It will be printed once a week, and on a large super-royal sheet—not inferior in point of size, to any in the state. The Press; and all the necessary apparatus to be entirely new, and of the best quality. We solicit the patronage of an independent community.

CONDITIONS.—Three Dollars, in advance, (upon the receipt of the first number) or Four dollars at the expiration of the year. Advertisements and all other printing, will be done at the customary prices.—Letters addressed to the Editors, must in all cases, be post paid.
