TOWN LOTS.
WILL be sold to the highest bidder, on Saturday the 22d May next, in the town of Knoxville, Crawford county, a quantity of TOWN LOTS, on accommodating terms—instalments made quite easy to the purchaser. The terms of sale will be made known on the day. It is entirely unnecessary to say anything in praise of Knoxville, to one who knows it, for its worth is already known; as to its commercial importance, it is not a fair trial, but we think we can pronounce it the seat of health. Its situation one of the most extreme county towns in purchase, induces us to say it will be a source of much importance.

Clinton Hotel
Is now completed, and ready for the reception of customers. This large and commodious building is situated at the east corner of the public square, immediately on the main road leading from Milledgeville to Fort Hawkins and Macon. It will be conducted by John Carter, Mrs. Evans, and C. Muer, who take this method of informing their friends, and the public generally, that no pains will be spared to render all those who shall favor them with their company comfortable. They flatter themselves, from their long experience in the business and appropriate situation of their house, to share a part of public patronage. Their table will be furnished with the best the country affords—their bar with the choicest of liquors. Their stables are convenient, and will constantly be supplied with wholesome provender and an attentive ostler.

Take Notice.
THE subscriber having taken that well known stand for a number of years, where the Union turnpike road crosses the Highwassee river—He has just put in a new ferry boat to which strict attention will be paid—he also keeps a House of Entertainment on the south side of said river near the ferry. This being the nearest and best route from Knoxville to Augusta, it only being 90 miles from Knoxville to the ferry and 192 miles from thence to Augusta, those who are travelling from Augusta to Knoxville will find it to their advantage to travel this route—The roads are in good repair, provisions plenty and cheap. This road only leads through 70 miles of the Indian country, that being the distance between the Georgia and Tennessee lines.

JESSE CLEMENTS.

Columbia Female Academy,
SOUTH CAROLINA.
THIS institution is intended to afford such a course of Female Education, as will comprise the various useful and ornamental branches, taught, at the present day, in the most approved seminaries of learning. The Trustees have the satisfaction to announce, that the Academy, under the joint direction of Walton County Academy.

THE exercises of this institution will commence on Monday the 16th of February next, under the care of JESSE C. PAULETT, who has been employed during four years in the Salem Academy. The experience of the Rector, and the healthfulness of the situation, which is equalled by few, and surpassed by none in the up-country, it is hoped may entitle the institution to a share of that patronage which an enlightened public is always ready to bestow on laudable undertakings. The scholastic year will consist of ten months, which will be divided into four quarters, of two and a half months each. The price of tuition will be from $3 75 to $8 per quarter, according to the different branches of study, payable in advance. In this Academy will be taught all those branches of education which are usually taught in public Academies, and the manners and morals of the pupils carefully attended to. For the better accomplishment of these objects, it is recommended that those students who board from home should board with the Rector, that he may have a better opportunity of attending closely to their morals and academical improvements.
By order of the Board,
THOMAS MOODY, Sec'y.

THE RADICALS.
From the Nashville Whig.
Within the last 4 or 5 years, a strange sort of an animal, called Radicals has become extremely numerous in these United States. In the year 1801 they became very abundant in the American forests, and continued so until the year 1812. From that period until about the year 1816, there was a sudden and manifest diminution in their numbers. It is supposed the Ward diminished their numbers. There are many persons amongst us who have either forgotten the times of 1801, or were too young to have marked them, who are wholly ignorant of this animal. Indeed, a correspondent comes at once to the point, and demands "What is a Radical?" We will tell him. A Radical is a species of terrier that hunts up and destroys the rats that break in and gnaw at the Treasury loaves.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.
All the great newspaper establishments now-a-days locate their professional letter writers at Washington City for the winter season. Previous to the issuance of our 1st No. we equipt Marmaduke Mercury, one of the firm of Levi Lilliput & Co. and started him for the Metropolis. We had great difficulty in procuring an out fit for Marmaduke: but with some old clothes which we pawned, and a few friendly contributions from our patrons, under the guise of loans, the ways and means were had, and Marmaduke started. We made no provision for his maintenance at Washington, because we were advised by our brother editors that a resident letter writer finds no difficulty in obtaining a genteel support, if he can but once get there—an occasional puff about the eloquence of some mule, is good for a week's subsistence—Many a dull sailor has been carried rapidly into port by a brisk wind—many of the members of Congress require tutors; and a considerations upon a subject, which, although unconnected with court business, may justly claim, in its great importance to their fellow citizens, and as subjects of general interest customarily do, the passing notice of the censors and guardians of the public welfare. We mean the extinguishment of the Indian title to the lands in the Creek nation, within the limits of Georgia. It is confidently believed, from data satisfactorily known to this body, that these lands may be purchased at this time on terms not at all exorbitant, considering the wealth, honor, and advantage which would flow to the United States, our own State, and to individuals, or even considering in the least their intrinsic value. Should the general government, whose duty and even interest it is to purchase these lands, consider it incompatible with their rights and views to do so, let it be undertaken by the State under the constitutional approbation of the former, on her own responsibility, and at her own expence, accepting from the general government any pecuniary or political aid, mutually satisfactory and necessary. It is known indeed that the Creek nation will sell these lands, at least as far as the Chatahochie river, on terms, which, if not as low as common heretofore, certainly at a price, which, a range of fractions along that and Flint river, would perhaps fully redeem. Nay, we have no hesitation in believing, that the town lots which might be sold, in a town, with a good reservation laid off at and around the fall of the Chatahochie river, would, of itself, by successive sales, satisfy the State for all her advances. The advantages of this point, and this river generally, in its relations with extensive portions of our country, could not fail to command the requisite attention, if perfectly known or duly remembered. But if these reservations are not sufficient, let her take sufficient, we would as little fear the disposition of our citizens to abide the sacrifice, as of the states resources to accommodate the payments. And if unsuccessful or inconvenient, to purchase these lands thus far, there is no question at all that a limited interior purchase may be readily made, around the falls of Chatahochie river, and with the privilege of navigation throughout its course. This the Chiefs have repeatedly and in numbers intimated, and would be an advantageous and pleasing event to the Indians themselves. Here might be formed the settlement of one or more, respectable counties, tending greatly to improve and better the condition of the natives, and have the effect of diverting their pursuits, more than any other means, exclusively to farming. A purchase here would be obliged to give the Indians a spirit of industry and civilization for it would even make them commercial, with Steam Boats at their doors. Nor is it believed that this settlement and intercourse would create with them any higher estimate of their lands, and thus lessen the prospect of future purchase, for by necessity they would learn the quantity only necessary for use, now they rate its value alone by its extent for cattle and game. At the falls promises certainly one of the first inland towns in the Southern States, the second Augusta of Georgia, and unlike that, it would be unfettered with the conflicting opposition of any other State. The navigation of the Chatahochie river is of the most favorable nature, and is essentially wanted for the convenience and prosperity of the upper and lower counties of this State on its borders, for the inhabitants of Alabama and the two Floridas adjacent thereon. Its mouth affords one of the most safe, direct and contiguous inlets to the richest of the West India Islands, and the productions of a rich and extensive country above, would speedily induce a Sea-port there, vying in commerce and revenue, with perhaps on the Southern coast. The acquisition of this country would also greatly enhance the value of the United States lands adjacent; and as few of the Indians live Eastward of the Chatahochie river, of course few private claims would be to reconcile. To conclude, these lands may be got if they are wanted, and we respectfully call the attention of our fellow-citizens, in both their public and private capacities, to extend their exertions and approbation in furtherance of these views, so vitally interesting to the wealth and power of our state.

We tender to His Honor Judge SHORTER, our confidence and approbation in the ability and promptitude of his administration during the present term.

We request that these our several presentments of a general nature be published in the Georgia Journal. HENRY CANDLER, Foreman. Hillen Peep, Sanders W.
