

W. A. Barnes, at the north-west corner of the public square, wants you and all of your friends and the rest of mankind as well as all the ladies and children, to call and make selections from his stock of dry goods, hats, shoes, ladies hats, shirts, socks, hose, corsets, collars, and notions generally at prices cheaper than ever was heard of in Bolivar. Barnes is the impersonation of life and energy, and if you want to live and let live, just give him a chance to make manifest his determination to do a legitimate business.
